

PLZEŇ REGION

ABOUT REGION

The region of Plzeň is located in the western part of Bohemia on the boundary with Bavaria, neighboring with Middle and South Bohemia and with the regions of Karlovy Vary and Ústí nad Labem. The Plzeň Region is divided among seven districts: Domažlice, Klatovy, Plzeň-město (City), Plzeň-sever (North), Rokycany and Tachov. On January 1, 2006 the area of the Plzeň region was 7,561 km², i.e. 9.6 % of the country's territory. It is the third largest of regions. On December 31 the Plzeň Region had a population of 554,537 which is 5.4 % of the Czech Republic population and the ninth place among the country's region. The region's capital Plzeň with 163,392 inhabitants is the fourth largest city in Czech Republic. There are 14 towns with a population over 5,000 in the Plzeň Region.

The most important natural monuments include the National Park of Šumava, sanctuary Šumava and sanctuary Český les in the Plzeň Region. All of these are continuously gaining importance as winter sports resorts. This trend is being helped by the gradual easing of controls on the boundary with Bavaria. Areas in the vicinity of Plzeň also offer interesting space for leisure and recreation activities. Though none of the landmarks and historic buildings in the region belongs to the UNESCO list of World Heritage, the region is virtually covered with them. Among the most interesting are monasteries in Plasy and Kladruba and castles Kozel, Rábí (ruins) and Švihov. There are three urban sanctuaries in Plzeň Region. The tower of St. Bartholomew's Dome (the highest church tower in Czech Republic) has become a symbol of the sanctuary in Plzeň. The other two sanctuaries are in Domažlice and Horšovský Týn. The folklore festival organized every year in Domažlice (sub-region Chodsko) is an event of utmost cultural importance for the region.

The largest university in Plzeň Region is Západočeská univerzita (West Bohemia University) in Plzeň, with seven colleges offering courses in engineering, science, and humanities, as well as new disciplines of applied sciences. There is also a local faculty of Medicine belonging to Prague's UK. Private universities are not of much importance in Plzeň. One of them, Vysoká škola v Plzni (University of Plzeň) is focused on health care.

Plzeň and its outskirts have always belonged to the most industrialized areas in the country, mainly thanks to rich deposits of raw materials. The machinery sector in the city suffered heavily when Škoda Works was weakened by voucher privatization. Now the factory is being restructured. Foreign investments are flowing in the electronics, machinery and food industries. Lumber and car making industries have their importance here as well. Thematic industrial clusters are not well developed yet. CzechInvest agency is currently conducting studies on possible clusters in mechatronics (mechanics and electronics).

This region's potential depends on its advantageous position in the western part of the country. Other promising assets include the finishing of a circumferential highway in Plzeň in 2006, sufficient supplies of raw materials for the manufacturing industry, the status of the local university, qualified workforce, good conditions for tourism in mountain areas and numerous landmarks and natural monuments.
